The latest ideas in SF training

We would like to welcome everyone involved in the teaching and training of SF to the first international conference in six years to be specifically aimed at trainers!

This is a unique opportunity to:

- develop yourself as an SF trainer
- explore different approaches to training in SF
- broaden your repertoire of skills and approaches.

Join many of the most experienced trainers in the field for some inspiration and creativity! We already know that some of the most innovative trainers will join, including Liselotte Baeijaert, Jenny Clarke, Louis Cauffman, Kirsten Dierolf, Ben Furman, Kati Hankovszky, Björn Johansson, Alan Kay, Mark McKergow, Eva Persson, Peter Röhrig and Peter Szabó.

Training in SF has for decades been a key way to spread and share this great approach. Indeed, the approach has been enriched by the variety of teaching methods, formats, models and course designs – all stemming from the fact that unlike many other approaches, there is no single ‘right’ way to do it! As more and more trainers see the benefits to their participants of going beyond a 2-day workshop, this conference will gather experiences and share activities and ideas in order to enrich and develop our programmes and enhance their quality.

What you can expect

We intend to offer a wide range of perspectives including:

- Sharing tools and activities
- Before, during and after – considering what goes AROUND an SF training?
- Trainers' toolkits
- What makes a training programme successful?
- Different perspectives on quality
- Evaluation (and research?) of training programmes
- Pedagogical perspectives
- Case presentations
- What else? (We welcome your suggestions)

The programme will include plenary sessions as well as workshops. We would invite you to send us suggestions for contributions, for example:

- case studies
- workshops on training topics
- demonstration of your training tools
- ideas for plenary sessions

Who is it aimed at

The conference is open to all – SFCT members and non-members alike. One of the SFCT's main aims is to develop the quality of SF training, and we want to engage as many people interested in training as possible and to collaborate on further developing the state of the art in SF training.

Registering

To register as a participant, please e-mail Jenny Clarke via registration@sfct.org. An invoice will be issued requesting payment by 15th August (we cannot afford to incur cancellation charges by the venue).

Call for presenters and facilitators

If you would like to present your ideas at the conference, please send a short email to registration@sfct.org before 30 March 2011 with the suggested format (workshop, plenary, case study, presentation, best practice exchange, etc). Please let us know:

- Title
- Short description
(what you would like to do, what it is about, what participants can expect to gain)
- Length
- Technical requirements.
